Arras

Université d'Artois

PROFILE

The Université d'Artois currently has an enrollment of 10,135 students. Spread over several campuses, the Université d'Artois serves a number of medium-sized French cities that are undergoing significant changes. With locations in Arras, Béthune, Lens, Douai, Liévin, the university has established itself as a force for community improvement. It provides a welcoming and stimulating environment in which to learn and grow. Partly because of its size, the Université d'Artois is an accessible yet thoroughly modern and dynamic institution that is responding to a changing educational system by offering innovative programs that artfully combine academic knowledge and practical skills. A comprehensive university, Artois offers a wide range of degree programs from 2-year undergraduate degrees to doctoral programs (in both traditional and continuing-education formats) in the following broad areas of learning:

- Humanities
- Law, economics, and management
- Science and technology

Main programmes of study

- Arts, Letters, and Languages
- Law, Economics, and Management
- Humanities and social sciences (History, Geography, Physical Education, Sports, and Athletics)
- Science, Technology, Health (mathematics, computer science, physics, chemistry, biology, civil engineering, industrial engineering, logistical engineering, electrical engineering, mechanical engineering)

Research

In its outreach to the industrial sector, the Université d'Artois has developed applied research programs to meet the economic and social needs of companies at the regional, national, and international levels. The Université d'Artois operates 16 research centers accredited by the French Ministry of Higher Education and Research.

Strengths

The university is comprehensive and close to Paris. It offers a one-stop-shop for student services and information (housing, health facilities, social services, sports, cultural events, and student clubs).
